About

Hi, I'm Foad Moghaddasi,
I was born in 1999. I studied computer engineering from 2017 to 2020. However, as I found my talent in learning different skills in various computer engineering areas, I decided to participate in a few online courses and expand my knowledge in front-end development. Consequently, I have decided to terminate my education in CE and start a new education field. Currently, I am studying industrial design, and being honest, I am pleased with my decision!

Although I have about three years of experience in computer networks, I have decided to change my career path to become a product designer to match my current educations.

Today, I have a 9-month experience in employee experience designing at "Jabama." Also, I own a small design studio based in Tehran, where I accept projects related to product and graphic designs.
